

Luigi Ricciardiello (MD) is Assistant Professor of Gastroenterology. His research activity is mostly focused on gastrointestinal disease prevention, with a specific emphasis on the role of dietary bioactives. He has spent 8 years in US and has contributed to NIH-funded grants and gained experience on both basic and clinical studies. He is member of the American College of Physicians, American Gastroenterological Association and a reviewer of several high-impacted journals including Gastroenterology, Clinical Gastroenterology and Hepatology, and GUT. He is the Project Co-coordinator.